Django

This is Django. He is approximately 11 years old and weighs just under 7 lbs. He spent most of his life on the streets with his homeless parent until they passed away suddenly. Luckily, a good Samaritan brought Django to The Honolulu Pet Clinic for help.

Dr. Hsu repaired Django's hernia and removed some diseased teeth, and now he is as good as new! Django is also vaccinated, neutered and microchipped.

Django is used to being with his special human 24/7, so therefore needs to be with someone who works from home or is retired, and who most importantly wants Django as a constant companion. Ideally this person has no other pets or children.

Django is very joyful. He loves to go on walks outside, to be carried around in your arms, and to give enthusiastic, jumping kisses. He will fall asleep on your lap or curl up in a tiny Django-sized dog bed. Django does not like to be left alone and will howl when this happens.

If you are looking for the most special little person who will love and cherish you and keep you company, please contact Trilby at The Honolulu Pet Clinic by phone or email at tsheeser@yahoo.com.
